Choose one family member to celebrate each month. Consider coinciding with birthdays and special events to make those months extra special for your loved ones. For example, if your son's birthday is in July, then he could be the person of the month for the month of July to make the whole month extra special for him. Also, don't forget to add mom and dad to the list!

As a family, talk about the ways you can serve and show love to that family member. Consider asking the person: "What would make you feel special"? Or, "How can we serve you and help you"?

Map out an entire year. Then, as each month approaches, sit down and ask the service and love questions. This is important because our needs change over time. Staying current with what is important will make the person feel extra special.
