

Mission Statement Development

Now that you have a family mission statement, it is time to set goals to help your family accomplish your mission.

In the first column, write the answers to the 8 mission statement questions you answered previously. In the next column, write a few goals that will help you attain, manage, and bring to pass your family's mission statement.

For example: Mission Statement question 1 asks, "When your family is at it's best." Let's assume you wrote, "When we are patient, serve others, and laugh together."

In the next column, write down two to three ways that your family can be more kind, serve each other more, and laugh together more often.

The third column can serve as a place for you to chart your progress.

Mission Statement
Development

Goals

Checkpoint
How are we doing?

Deadlines

			